

ABSTRACT

5 A pharmaceutical formulation is provided in powder form by spray drying to form a polymeric coated core element which coating both masks the taste of the active ingredient present in the core and provides sustained release properties.